Charles S. Houck, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, of Hawley, a registered student at the law office of Victor A. Decker, Esq., of the Wayne county bar, will make application to the State Board of Law Examiners to be examined on December 7th and 9th next, for admission to the bar of the Supreme court of the state and the bar of the Court of Common Pleas of Wayne county. Mr. Houck, for several years, was editor of the Hawley Times.

A half-dozen or more out of town parties are interested in furnishing Honesdale with cheaper and better lights. For several years the taxpayers of Honesdale have paid annually, $2,900 or thereabouts, for electric arc lights. A proposition which is meeting with the approval of the citizens of the town, is now being considered and a demonstration will soon be made. By changing from electric arc lamps to the new system of lighting it would be a saving of about half of the amount now being paid for light. This applied to the street would give Honesdale a paved Main street.

A number of friends and relatives visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gardner of East street Friday afternoon and evening, the occasion being the 50th anniversary of their marriage. An informal reception was held at the home from 3 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 10 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner are prominent residents of Honesdale and have a large circle of friends in this place. They are both natives of Wyoming county and were married at Nicholson, Pa. A short time after their marriage they removed to Scranton and then came to Honesdale. Until two years ago Mr. Gardner was engineer on the Honesdale branch of the Erie Railroad, in which position he faithfully served for a number of years. Those from out of town who attended the anniversary celebration were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley M. Gardner and son Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gardner, and Miss Sarah Gardner, of Scranton, Mrs. A. J. Gilmore, of Factoryville, Mrs. Jos. Houck, of Pittston, Mrs. Clara Steinback, of Newark, and Mrs. E. J. Jordon, of Tunkhannock.

OBITUARY.

GILON.—Edward Gilon died at his home on Spring street Monday evening after a lingering illness. Mr. Gilon was seventy-five years of age. He was born in New York but came to Honesdale to reside about two months ago, having purchased the Miller property on Spring street. The deceased was formerly deputy tax collector of New York City. He was a member of the Masons, the G. A. R. and the volunteer firemen's association. He was also a member of the general committee of Tammany Hall and was prominent in other public affairs for a number of years. Besides his wife he is survived by the following children: William J., Edward, Frank L., Mrs. Wm. Ritsert and Miss Jessie L., all of New York City, and Alfred N., of Boldez, Alaska. The remains will be taken to New York City on Wednesday morning and on Thursday services will be held in Masonic Temple, with interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

DOWNING.—On Sunday evening, Oct. 17, 1909, the death angel called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Downing and claimed for its own their daughter, Ethel, an amiable young lady of 17 years. Miss Downing was a young lady who aspired to be of service in the world, and to prepare herself for better service she had entered the Waymart High school. She was able to attend but a few weeks when the condition of her health became such that she was compelled to leave school and after receiving medical treatment at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Brown, of East Honesdale, she was brought on Wednesday to her home in Beach Lake, from whence on Sunday evening she departed to that home whence none ever returns. Ethel was the sixth of a family of twelve children, eleven of whom survive her. They are: Fred, of Carbondale; Mrs. Hester, of Milford; Mrs. John Brown, of Honesdale; and Mamie, Lucy, John, Wilbur, Francis, Agnes, Theodore and Ruford at home. The funeral will be held from the M. Mr. Lake was born in Preston township, this county, Dec. 7, 1846, but soon thereafter his parents moved to Pleasant Mount. Being the eldest son, at an early age his father depended upon him for assistance in the store, but sent him to the Lake homestead where he attended Greenville Academy for two winters. On September 25, 1867, he married Georgiana Fitz, of Whites Valley, and in 1868 he accepted a position as bookkeeper for the Elk Hill Coal and Iron Co., at Dickson City. In 1870 he moved to Scranton as cashier of the Citizens' and Miners' Savings Bank. He returned to Pleasant Mount in 1883 to settle up his father's estate. September 1, 1885, he moved to Osage City, Kansas, where he organized the Citizens' Bank which became the First National Bank in 1870. He was cashier until 1890 when he was made President which office he held until 1893 when he retired. He served as treasurer of the Pennsylvania Association of Kansas Settlers for a number of years. His residence was at Osage City at the time of his death. He was on a visit with his son Albert in Chicago, on his way home from attending "Old Home Week" celebration in Wayne county. He is survived by the following children: David, Minor, Newark, N. J.; Anna Georgia, Osage City; Albert Edward, Earl, Arthur Crawford, Walter E. Lake of Pleasant Mount is a brother of the deceased.

THE PURDY MEMORIAM

On Monday afternoon court adjourned to permit the members of the Wayne County Bar to give expression to the high esteem in which they held the late Presiding Judge, George S. Purdy. Every member of the bar was present, and gave expression to their regard for the deceased jurist. As most of the addresses were made extemporaneous we were unable to obtain copy of any excepting R. M. Stocker's, which we print below. The following resolutions were adopted:

The Bar of Wayne county, desirous of expressing its unfeigned sorrow because of the death of honorable George S. Purdy, who for twenty-one years was a member thereof, and who supplemented this by service as President Judge of the 22nd Judicial District, from January, 1894, to the time of his death on August 31, 1909.

Coming to the Bar at the age of thirty-four years, with a large and extended experience in business affairs, a keen knowledge of men, and a mind well stored with legal principles, he rose rapidly in his profession to prominence, and had at the time of his election to the Judgeship an extensive and lucrative practice. His sturdy integrity, broad sympathy for those in financial or personal trouble, and his manifest interest in the general welfare of men, whether rich or poor, won for him merited respect and confidence from all who knew him.

As a lawyer, he was fair, able and aggressive, and as a Judge, he enjoyed an enviable reputation for his knowledge of legal principles and sound reasoning far beyond the standard of Common Pleas Judges, and his decisions have rarely been changed by appellate courts.

He never aspired to be a leader, and was ever unobtrusive and modest in all his associations. It was said of him that he possessed a large allowance of Common Sense, that so often proves a priceless gift in the safe construction and interpretation of laws. This also enabled him always to take broad views of personal and official duty. Recognizing the limitations of his sphere in life, he lived up to its limit, and was content in the reflection that after all, he does best who best performs his duty amid the environment in which fate decrees his course. A busy life is always fraught with longings for some other way supposed to be Elysian, but Judge Purdy exhibited no uneasy desire for new ways; he was content to pursue the clearly defined path of duty, wherever it might lead; whether it lay over the shining precipices of glory, or through the more quiet vales of an humble, but generally a more useful career.

Both as a practicing attorney and as a Judge, he held his friends as with arms of steel. He had also great capacity for securing new friends. He never resented a wrong aimed at himself, but by his kindly manner, disarmed his enemies and won them to him as steadfast companions; nor was he critical of the faults of others, and if he made any observation touching the frailties of others it was always tempered with charity.

His name will long be revered among the legal fraternity and his death keenly felt by those most closely associated with him.

In order therefore to show its appreciation of his admirable qualities and to preserve his memory, the Bar does now resolve that a copy of this minute be sent to his family and that the Court be requested to give it a place among the records.

H. WILSON,
A. T. SEARLE,
F. P. KIMBLE,
Committee.

R. M. Stocker said: It seems but yesterday that Judge Purdy was upon our streets, in our offices and sitting in yonder chair in our court room, now he is only a reminiscence, an echo of the past, which only reminds us how transitory life is.

It matters little what we say here, every man writes his own memorial by the life he leads as he moves about before the community. Character and reputation are the resultant of that life, and from the impression made by the life there is no appeal. Fulsome eulogy cannot add to, nor harsh criticism take from the record which every man makes for himself, but one's contemporaries may profitably consider some of his characteristics.

A prominent characteristic of Judge Purdy was prudence. "The prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself." The Anti-Court House movement taken at its flood led on to fortune and the Judgeship for George S. Purdy. With that movement he was identified particularly in connection with the election of Otis Avery, as Associate Judge. He was also strenuously engaged in the campaign for the Judgeship in 1883, otherwise he took no very active part, excepting for a few friends in any political contest. Being elected Judge in 1893 without opposition and again, in the same manner in 1903, he doubtless considered himself out of politics. Ten years of commissioners' clerkship and fifteen years of the Judgeship constitutes his official life. In both positions he succeeded in meeting with very general approbation.

Without the advantages of anything but a common school education, his early training in farming, lumbering, school teaching and clerkship in tannery stores, developed sound common sense, which united with a sense of justice made him an equitable judge, whose decisions were seldom reversed. His prudence, cool-headed poise and good judgment were manifested in his business affairs, as a lawyer as well as on the bench. These qualities united with hard common sense, enabled him to grasp legal principles and make practical application of them, where many persons with far greater scholastic attainments have failed. In administering justice to criminals he was lenient to a fault.

He attended church regularly at the morning service and maintained a respectful attitude towards the church, to which he contributed, and of which he was a trustee, further than that he gave no sign. With temperance and kindred reforms he was never identified, although personally he was a man of temperate habits. Socially he looked on the bright side of things and lent himself easily to the lighter amusements; and trout fishing was his principal recreation. He was an intelligent conversationalist, although not an extensive reader nor a man of great scholarship. Altogether he was a man who attended to his own affairs very strictly and prudently without intermeddling very seriously with other things, and both politically and financially, like most prudent men he was successful.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so that they offer One Hundred Dollars much faith in its curative powers for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
